LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
COMMITTEE ON FINANCIAL SERVICES,
Washington, DC, January 2, 2003.

Hon. JEFF TRANDAHL

Clerk, United States House of Representatives, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. TRANDAHL: Pursuant to clause 1(d) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives for the 107th Congress, I present herewith a report on the activity of the Committee on Financial Services for the 107th Congress, including the Committee's review and study of legislation within its jurisdiction, and the oversight activities undertaken by the Committee.

Sincerely,

MICHAEL G. OXLEY,

JURISDICTION

RULES OF THE HOUSE

Clause 1(g) of rule X of the Rules of the House of Representatives sets forth the jurisdiction of the Committee on Financial Services as follows—

- (1) Banks and banking, including deposit insurance and Federal monetary policy.
- (2) Economic stabilization, defense production, renegotiation, and control of the price of commodities, rents, and services.
- (3) Financial aid to commerce and industry (other than transportation).
- (4) Insurance generally.
- (5) International finance.
- (6) International financial and monetary organization.
- (7) Money and credit, including currency and the issuance of notes and redemption thereof; gold and silver, including the coinage thereof; valuation and revaluation of the dollar.
- (8) Public and private housing.
- (9) Securities and exchanges.
- (10) Urban development.

MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING

The Committee on Financial Services was established when the House agreed to H. Res. 5, establishing the Rules of the House of Representatives for the 107th Congress, on January 3, 2001. The jurisdiction of the Committee on Financial Services consists of the jurisdiction granted the Committee on Banking and Financial Services in the 106th Congress, along with jurisdiction over insurance generally and securities and exchanges, matters which had previously been within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Commerce in the 106th and previous congresses. On January 20, 2001,¹ the Speaker inserted the following memorandum of understanding between the chairmen of the Committee on Financial Services and the Committee on Energy and Commerce further clarifying these jurisdictional changes—

JANUARY 20, 2001

On January 3, 2001, the House agreed to H. Res. 5, establishing the rules of the House for the 107th Congress. Section 2(d) of H. Res. 5 contained a provision renaming the Banking Committee as the Financial Services Committee and transferring jurisdiction over securities and exchanges and insurance from the Commerce Committee to the Financial Services Committee. The Commerce Committee was also renamed the Energy and Commerce Committee.

The Committee on Energy and Commerce and the Committee on Financial Services jointly acknowledge as the authoritative source of legislative history concerning section 2(d) of H. Res. 5 the following statement of Rules Committee Chairman David Dreier during floor consideration of the resolution:

"In what is obviously one of our most significant changes, Mr. Speaker, section 2(d) of the resolution establishes a new Committee on Financial Services, which will have jurisdiction over the following matters:

"(1) banks and banking, including deposit insurance and Federal monetary policy;

"(2) economic stabilization, defense production, renegotiation, and control of the price of commodities, rents, and services;

"(3) financial aid to commerce and industry (other than transportation);

"(4) insurance generally;

"(5) international finance;

"(6) international financial and monetary organizations;

"(7) money and credit, including currency and the issuance of notes and redemption thereof; gold and silver, including the coinage thereof; valuation and revaluation of the dollar;

"(8) public and private housing;

"(9) securities and exchanges; and

"(10) urban development.

"Mr. Speaker, jurisdiction over matters relating to securities and exchanges is transferred in its entirety from the Committee on Commerce, which will be redesignated under this rules change to the Committee on Energy and Commerce, and it will now be transferred from the new Committee on Energy and Commerce to this new Committee on Financial Services. This transfer is not intended to convey to the Committee on Financial Services jurisdiction currently in the Committee on Agriculture regarding commodity exchanges.

"Furthermore, this change is not intended to convey to the Committee on Financial Services jurisdiction over matters relating to regulation and SEC oversight of multi-State public utility holding companies and their subsidiaries, which remain essentially matters of energy policy.

"Mr. Speaker, as a result of the transfer of jurisdiction over matters relating to securities and exchanges, redundant jurisdiction over matters relating to bank capital markets activities generally and depository institutions securities activities, which were formerly matters in the jurisdiction of the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, have been removed from clause 1 of rule X.

"Matters relating to insurance generally, formerly within the jurisdiction of the redesignated Committee on Energy and Commerce, are transferred to the jurisdiction of the Committee on Financial Services.

"The transfer of any jurisdiction to the Committee on Financial Services is not intended to limit the Committee on Energy and Commerce's jurisdiction over consumer affairs and consumer protection matters.

“Likewise, existing health insurance jurisdiction is not transferred as a result of this change.

“Furthermore, the existing jurisdictions of other committees with respect to matters relating to crop insurance, Workers’ Compensation, insurance anti-trust matters, disaster insurance, veterans’ life and health insurance, and national social security policy are not affected by this change.

“Finally, Mr. Speaker, the changes and legislative history involving the Committee on Financial Services and the Committee on Energy and Commerce do not preclude future memorandum of understanding between the chairmen of these respective committees.”

By this memorandum the two committees undertake to record their further mutual understandings in this matter, which will supplement the statement quoted above.

It is agreed that the Committee on Energy and Commerce will retain jurisdiction over bills dealing broadly with electronic commerce, including electronic communications networks (ECNs). However, a bill amending the securities laws to address the specific type of electronic securities transaction currently governed by a special SEC regulation as an Alternative Trading System (ATS) would be referred to the Committee on Financial Services.

While it is agreed that the jurisdiction of the Committee on Financial Services over securities and exchanges includes anti-fraud authorities under the securities laws, the Committee on Energy and Commerce will retain jurisdiction only over the issue of setting of accounting standards by the Financial Accounting Standards Board.

W.J. “BILLY” TAUZIN,
Chairman, Committee on Energy and Commerce,
 MICHAEL G. OXLEY,
Chairman, Committee on Financial Services.

LEGISLATIVE ACTIVITIES

FINANCIAL ANTI-TERRORISM ACT

Public Law 107-56 (H.R. 3162; H.R. 3004)

To combat the financing of terrorism and other financial crimes, and for other purposes.

*Mr. Sanders is an independent, but caucuses with the Democratic Caucus.

Summary

Title III of H.R. 3162 contained many of the provisions of H.R. 3004, the Financial Anti-Terrorism Act. The legislation contains provisions to strengthen law enforcement authorities, as well as enhance public-private cooperation between government and industry in disrupting terrorist funding.

The legislation (1) makes it a crime to smuggle over $10,000 into or out of the United States, and to transport more than $10,000 in criminal proceeds across State lines; (2) gives the Justice Department new prosecutorial tools to combat terrorist-related and other money laundering through U.S. financial institutions; (3) provides statutory authorization for the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN), which analyzes reports filed by financial institutions on currency transactions and suspicious financial activity; (4) sets up a unit in FinCEN directed at oversight and analysis of hawalas and other underground black market banking systems; (5) directs the Treasury to develop regulations to guide financial institutions in verifying the identity of customers who open accounts at the institution; (6) directs the Treasury Department to establish a secure web site to receive electronic filings of Suspicious Activity Reports (SARs) and provide financial institutions with alerts and other information regarding patterns of terrorist or other suspicious activity that warrant enhanced scrutiny; (7) requires the Secretary of the Treasury to report quarterly to industry on how SARs are used to assist law enforcement in combating terrorism and other crimes; (8) authorizes intelligence agency access to reports filed by financial institutions and expands government access to consumer financial records and credit histories; (9) sets a December 31, 2001, deadline for proposed regulations on SAR reporting requirements for broker-dealers and authorizes the Department of the Treasury to require SARs of certain commodity futures traders; (11) authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to impose 'special measures' if a foreign country, financial institution, transaction, or account is deemed to be a 'primary money laundering concern'; (12) prohibits U.S. financial institutions from providing banking services to 'shell' banks that have no physical presence in any country nor any affiliation with a financial institution; (13) requires greater due diligence for certain correspondent and private banking accounts; (14) authorizes Treasury to regulate concentration accounts; (15) requires financial institutions to have anti-money laundering programs; and (16) updates U.S. anti-counterfeiting laws.

THE TERRORISM RISK INSURANCE ACT OF 2002

Public Law 107-297 (H.R. 3210; S. 2600)

To ensure the continued financial capacity of insurers to provide coverage for risks from terrorism.

Summary

The Act establishes the Terrorism Insurance Program in the Department of the Treasury under which the Federal government will share the risk of loss from future terrorist attacks with the commercial property and casualty insurance marketplace, for a temporary period of time. The Secretary of the Treasury will administer the Program and pay the Federal share of compensation for insured losses. The Federal government pays 90 percent of insured losses in excess of an insurer's deductible, while the insurer pays 10 percent. Insurers may reinsure their insurer deductibles and 10 percent co-shares. Losses covered by the Program will be capped at $100 billion per year; above this amount, Congress will determine the procedures for and the source of any payments.

Before receiving Federal assistance under this Act, an insurer must certify its claim for payment of insured losses, that a policyholder (or person acting on the policyholder's behalf) has filed a claim for such loss, and the insurer's compliance with the Act. The Secretary may not reimburse an insurer for such losses unless the insurer has provided clear and conspicuous disclosure to the policyholder of the premium charged for terrorism coverage and the Federal share of compensation. This disclosure to the policyholder must occur at the time of offer, purchase, and renewal of the policy for policies issued after the date of enactment, and must be made on a separate line item in the policy with respect to policies issued more than 90 days after enactment. For policies issued before the date of enactment, the disclosure must be made within 90 days of such date. Insurers must submit premium and claims information to the Secretary who may investigate and audit all claims under the Program.

Each entity meeting the definition of insurer under this legislation is required to participate in the Program. During the first two years of the Program each such insurer must make available in all of its property and casualty insurance policies coverage for insured losses, and shall make such coverage available on terms that do not differ materially from the terms, amounts, and other coverage limitations applicable to losses arising from events other than acts of terrorism. The Secretary has discretion to extend this requirement to the third year of the Program, to preserve this important option for policyholders.

The Secretary can require full repayment of any Federal assistance by the industry, with mandatory repayment for any Federal assistance provided for non-catastrophic losses under the established retention levels. This insurance marketplace retention is set at $10 billion in Program year 1 (including any remainder of 2002), $12.5 billion in Program year 2, and $15 billion in Program year 3. Federal assistance within the retention above the insurer deductibles and 10 percent co-shares must be recouped while additional amounts of Federal assistance may be recouped based on economic factors in the judgment of the Secretary. Mandatory recoupment within the insurance marketplace retention is through terrorism loss risk-spreading premiums (surcharges) paid by all commercial property and casualty policyholders based on premium rates with any year's surcharge (mandatory and discretionary combined) capped at 3 percent of the premium charged for property and casualty insurance coverage under the policy in each such year. The Secretary has discretion over the timing of recoupment, and to adjust amounts for urban, smaller commercial, and rural areas, as well as for different lines of insurance, so long as the mandatory amounts are ultimately recouped. The Secretary may assess civil penalties on insurers for submission of false or misleading information or failure to repay the Secretary for any amount required to be repaid, or for other failure to comply with the provisions of this title.

The Secretary is also directed to conduct an expedited study to determine whether adequate and affordable catastrophe reinsurance for acts of terrorism is available to group life insurers and whether the threat of terrorism is reducing the availability of group life insurance for consumers. Should the Secretary determine that terrorism coverage is not or will not be reasonably available to insurers and consumers, the Secretary would be required to include group life insurance in the Terrorism Insurance Program. In so doing, the Secretary would have discretion to determine the most appropriate way to include group life insurance in the Program.

The Secretary, after consultation with the NAIC, is also directed to conduct a study of the potential effects of acts of terrorism on the availability of life insurance generally and other lines of insurance coverage, including personal lines, to be submitted to Congress not later than 9 months from the date of enactment.

Commercial property and casualty terrorism insurance exclusions that are in force on the date of the enactment of this legislation are voided to the extent that they exclude losses that would otherwise be insured losses. Any State approval of any commercial property and casualty terrorism insurance exclusion in force on the date of enactment is also void to the extent that it excludes losses that would otherwise be insured losses.

Until the end of 2003, States will be required to allow rate and form changes to take effect immediately but retain authority to disapprove any rates as excessive, inadequate, or unfairly discriminatory and, where a State has prior approval authority for forms, subsequent review of such forms is permitted.

The Program creates an exclusive Federal action to address claims arising from terrorist attacks, preempting corollary State actions and jurisdiction (although State substantive law would continue to apply). Claims can be consolidated in the appropriate Federal courts by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation. The Program does not provide payments for punitive damages from the Federal government.

The Program backstop lasts for slightly over 3 years, terminating on December 31, 2005. Title II allows victims of terrorism to obtain satisfaction of judgments from blocked assets of terrorists. Title III creates certain emergency authority of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System.

OVERSIGHT ACTIVITIES

REPORTS ON THE CONDUCT OF MONETARY POLICY

On February 28 and July 18, 2001, and February 27 and July 17, 2002, the Committee received testimony from the Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, Alan Greenspan, on the conduct of monetary policy. The report continued a tradition of twice-yearly reports by the Fed Chairman to the committees of jurisdiction in the House and Senate that formerly were referred to as “Humphrey-Hawkins” hearings after the act that required the testimony.

TERRORISM INSURANCE

On September 26, 2001, the Committee on Financial Services held a Full Committee hearing entitled America’s Insurance Industry: Keeping the Promise. The hearing focused on the insurance industry’s response to the September 11th terrorist attacks. The hearing began with an update on the Nation’s financial markets from Securities and Exchange Chairman Harvey Pitt. The New York Insurance Department, National Association of Insurance Commissioners, and several insurance industry CEOs then discussed how the immediate human needs of the victims of the September 11th tragedy were being met by insurers, and confirmed the financial strength of the U.S. insurance industry. An analyst from A.M. Best Company also spoke to the strength of the industry and its ability to pay claims in response to the tragedy. Also raised at the hearing was the possible need for the Federal government to create a backstop for terrorism insurance for any future terrorist events.

THE WORLDCOM FRAUD

On July 8, 2002 the Committee on Financial Services held a hearing entitled, “Wrong Numbers: the Accounting Problems at WorldCom.” On June 25, 2002, WorldCom announced that an internal audit found transfers of expenses from expense accounts to capital expenditure accounts (thereby deferring and not immediately recognizing the costs), in violation of generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP). The amount of the transfers was $3.055 billion for 2001 and $797 million for first quarter 2002. Without these transfers, the company would have reported a net loss for 2001 and for the first quarter of 2002. The purpose of the hearing was to gain further insight into the scope and nature of the fraudulent transactions and the individuals involved at WorldCom.

TERRORIST FINANCING: A PROGRESS REPORT ON IMPLEMENTATION OF THE USA PATRIOT ACT

On September 19, 2002, the full Committee held a hearing to review the government’s implementation of the terrorist finance and anti-money laundering provisions of the USA PATRIOT Act, enacted into law on October 26, 2001. als trade. The hearing also examined the Treasury Department's progress in developing regulations implementing specific provisions of the PATRIOT Act, as well as the administration's diplomatic initiatives to enlist the cooperation of other countries in combating terrorist financing. Testifying were Robert S. Mueller, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation; Deputy Secretary of Treasury Kenneth W. Dam; and Alan Larson, Under Secretary of State for Economic, Business and Agricultural Affairs.

HUD RESPA REFORM

The proposal addresses the issue of loan originator compensation. It improves HUD's Good Faith Estimate (GFE) settlement cost disclosures and HUD's related RESPA regulations. Also, the rule promotes competition by removing regulatory barriers to allow guaranteed packages of settlement services and mortgages to be made available to consumers.

The Committee on Financial Services held a hearing on October 3, 2002, entitled "Reforming the Real Estate Settlement Procedure: Review of HUD's proposed RESPA Rule". The Honorable Mel Martinez, Secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, was the only witness to testify.

LEGISLATIVE ACTIVITIES

INVESTOR AND CAPITAL MARKETS FEE RELIEF ACT

Public Law 107-123 (H.R. 1088, S. 143)

To amend the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 to reduce fees collected by the Securities and Exchange Commission, and for other purposes.

Summary

H.R. 1088, the Investor and Capital Markets Fee Relief Act, addresses the excessive fees paid by participants in the capital markets, which had generated revenues exceeding the budget of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) by over 600 percent. The Act reduces all SEC fees, including transaction fees, registration fees, merger/tender fees, and single stock future transaction fees. In addition, the Act addresses the problem of the difficulty of the SEC to retain top professional staff at current pay levels, especially in light of the disparate pay that SEC staff received as compared with the staff at the Federal banking regulatory agencies. Accordingly, the Act provides for pay parity for SEC staff, in order to bring their pay up to the level of comparable employees at those other financial regulatory agencies.

The Subcommittee on Capital Markets, Insurance, and Government Sponsored Enterprises held a hearing over several days in June, 2002 on insurance regulation entitled "Insurance Regulation and Competition for the 21st Century". The purpose of the hearing was to discuss the numerous issues the Committee will need to consider in analyzing proposals to increase the efficiency and uniformity of insurance regulation. At each day of the hearing, witnesses assessed these issues in light of the current regulatory structure and under various reform proposals for the future.

On June 4, 2002, the Subcommittee focused on the history of insurance regulation (including the role of the State regulator associations and various modeling and rating entities), the economics of the industry (including how industry regulation is funded), and the role of alternative markets, State residual markets/disaster pools, risk retention groups, captives, and surplus lines providers. On June 11, 2002, the Subcommittee reviewed the insurance product approval process, efforts by the States to coordinate financial exams and the evolution of the NAIC's accreditation program, the importance of uniform U.S. insurance regulation in maintaining U.S. competitiveness in world trade and strengthening our negotiating position with the E.U. and other international markets, the various E.U. models for financial regulation, and international issues facing the reinsurance industry. On June 18, 2002, the Subcommittee analyzed regulatory models used in other financial services sectors and different reform philosophies, as well as market conduct regulation and consumer protection issues. In addition to addressing individual issues panelists discussed their support for or opposition to various reform proposals. Witnesses included State insurance regulators, consumers, agents and brokers, banks, financial services firms, and insurance companies.

The Subcommittee on Capital Markets, Insurance, and Government Sponsored Enterprises continued its review of proposals to improve insurance regulation with a "roundtable discussion" on Insurance Regulatory Reform on September 17, 2002. The Roundtable examined the entire gamut of reform philosophies and proposals including: State by State reforms, coordination of State regulation through the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, Federal promotion of State uniformity, and an optional Federal charter.

TERRORISM INSURANCE

The Subcommittee on Capital Markets, Insurance, and Government Sponsored Enterprises held a hearing on October 24, 2001, entitled "Protecting Policyholders from Terrorism: Private Sector Solutions." The hearing examined whether there was an impending availability crisis for terrorism insurance following September 11th and provided a forum to discuss possible solutions to any crisis. Witnesses testifying included Secretary of the Treasury Paul O'Neill and Glenn Hubbard, Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers on the presence of a potential availability and affordability crisis for terrorism insurance; representatives from an airport which spoke to their inability to obtain affordable terrorism insurance at pre-September 11 levels and the effect on the airport's business; an insurance broker, who analyzed the terrorism coverage market; and the General Accounting Office, which summarized a number of domestic and international approaches that have been used to address difficult-to-insure risks. Also testifying were academic experts, consumer groups, and insurance company executives who spoke to the pros and cons of various approaches that could be used to ensure terrorism insurance coverage for America's consumers and businesses.

The Subcommittee on Capital Markets, Insurance, and Government Sponsored Enterprises continued a review of the various approaches that could be used to ensure terrorism insurance coverage on October 31, 2001, when it held a "roundtable discussion" on Terrorism Risk Insurance. Participating in this event were representatives from Federal and State government, primary and reinsurance company representatives, academics, consumer groups, and commercial policyholders.

RISK BASED CAPITAL FOR GOVERNMENT SPONSORED ENTERPRISES

On Wednesday, August 1, 2001, the Subcommittee on Capital Markets, Insurance, and Government Sponsored Enterprises held a hearing to consider the Office of Federal Housing Enterprise Oversight (OFHEO) final rule on risk-based capital standards for Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac. The hearing was conducted pursuant to the Subcommittee's responsibilities under the Congressional Review Act for major rules. OFHEO's rule specifies the stress test to be used in determining the risk-based capital requirement and, along with the minimum capital requirement, the capital classification for purposes of possible supervisory action. OFHEO's stress test will determine the amount of total capital each enterprise needs to survive a ten-year period of severe economic stress in the housing and credit markets. OFHEO's Director testified before the Subcommittee.

SUBSIDIES FOR HOUSING GOVERNMENT SPONSORED ENTERPRISES

On Wednesday, May 23, 2001, the Subcommittee on Capital Markets, Insurance, and Government Sponsored Enterprises held a hearing on Federal subsidies for the housing government sponsored enterprises (GSEs)—Fannie Mae, Freddie Mac, and the Federal Home Loan Banks. The purpose of the hearing was to receive an update from the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) of its 1996 estimate of the value of the subsidies provided by Congress to the housing GSEs. The GSEs benefit from their government ties through a funding advantage and tax and regulatory exemptions. CBO found that the housing GSEs receive a substantial Federal subsidy as a result of their special status, estimated to be $13.6 billion in 2000. CBO also found that the GSEs pass through some but not all of that subsidy to mortgage borrowers, about $7 billion in 2000. CBO's Director testified before the Subcommittee.

On Wednesday, July 11, 2001, the Subcommittee on Capital Markets, Insurance, and Government Sponsored Enterprises held a second hearing on the CBO report on subsidies for the housing GSEs.

Testifying before the Subcommittee were senior corporate officers from Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac and representatives from trade associations, consulting firms, and academia.

INTERNATIONAL ACCOUNTING STANDARDS

On Thursday, June 7, 2001, the Subcommittee on Capital Markets, Insurance, and Government Sponsored Enterprises held a hearing on promotion of international capital flow through accounting standards. The purpose of the hearing was to consider the issue of convergence in international financial reporting requirements and the impact of the establishment of international accounting standards on the world's capital markets and investors. The Subcommittee reviewed the work of international and domestic accounting standard setters to ensure that those standards promote fair and efficient capital flows, and to ensure that the standards facilitate investor access to the highest quality information about the capital markets and their participants. Testifying before the Subcommittee were representatives from an international accounting standards body, a corporation, and an accounting firm.

On Tuesday, March 27, 2001, the Subcommittee on Capital Markets, Insurance, and Government Sponsored Enterprises held a hearing to review the voluntary agreement by Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac on to improve their capitalization, information disclosure, and market discipline. Witnesses testifying before the Subcommittee were senior corporate officers from Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac.

MARKET DATA AND TRANSPARENCY

On March 14th, 2001, the Subcommittee on Capital Markets, Insurance, and Government Sponsored Enterprises held a hearing entitled "Public Access to Market Data—Improving Transparency and Competition." The purpose of the hearing was to examine how current regulations could be changed to take advantage of modern technology to provide investors with more efficient and accurate information flows. The subcommittee examined how market data is disseminated, the transparency of information about the costs and revenues associated with market data dissemination, and the need for modernization of the regulatory structure governing the production and dissemination of market data.

On July 26th, 2001, the Subcommittee on Capital Markets, Insurance, and Government Sponsored Enterprises held a hearing entitled "Market Data II: Implications to Investors and Market Transparency of Granting Ownership Rights over Stock Quotes." This hearing focused on the debate surrounding the regulations governing market data: the issue of whether market data consolidators, which have government-granted exclusive rights over market data distribution, need, or should receive, a new legal ownership right over the stock quotes that make up stock market data.

FAIR DISCLOSURE AND REGULATION FD

On May 17, 2001, The Subcommittee on Capital Markets, Insurance, and Government Sponsored Enterprises held a hearing entitled “Fair Disclosure or Flawed Disclosure: Is Reg FD helping or hurting investors.” On August 10, 2000 the SEC adopted Regulation Fair Disclosure (Reg FD), a rule governing the disclosure of information by publicly traded companies. The purpose of the hearing was to examine whether Reg FD had been successful in reaching its objective to provide a level playing field regarding information access for all investors.

WALL STREET ANALYSTS AND CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

On June 14th and July 31st, 2001 the Subcommittee on Capital Markets, Insurance, and Government Sponsored Enterprises held a hearing over two days entitled “Analyzing the Analysts.” The purpose of the hearings was to examine Wall St. research practices. On the first day, the Subcommittee heard from a broad range of witnesses assessing the question of whether conflicts of interest facing securities analysts preclude research that is objective and free of bias. On the second day, the subcommittee broadened the scope of its inquiry to examine the role of other participants in Wall Street research beyond analysts, such as institutional investors, corporate issuers, and the media.

THE ENRON COLLAPSE

The Subcommittee on Capital Market, Insurance, and Government Sponsored Enterprises held 2 hearings entitled “The Enron Collapse: Impact on Investors and Financial Markets” to examine the implications of the Enron bankruptcy, the largest corporate bankruptcy in history at that time. The Subcommittee’s investigation included such matters as: whether the current financial reporting and disclosure model is outdated and needs to be modernized so that investors can receive more transparent, useful, and timely information; whether the accounting profession requires greater oversight; why equity analysts failed to warn investors about Enron’s decline; and whether credit rating agencies failed to downgrade Enron in a timely manner. The Subcommittee held a joint hearing with the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations on December 12, 2001, and a further hearing on February 4, 2002, and February 5, 2002.

ACCOUNTING REFORM AND CORPORATE GOVERNANCE

On May 1 and 14, 2002, the Subcommittee held a hearing to review the generally accepted accounting principles and discretionary accounting practices that American companies use every day to report on their operations. Among those under critical review by regulators, Congress, and the press included principles and practices for reporting revenue from the sale of a business; changes to accounts receivable; company loans to corporate insiders; special accounting mechanisms designed to minimize taxes; and pension fund transactions. The Subcommittee also examined the adequacy of the current regulatory system to appropriately and timely assess the accuracy of financial reporting statements based on historical cost. Witnesses during the two hearings addressed the costs to investors and employees of reliance on GAAP-based financial statements; the theories behind many of the most controversial transactions and structures; and the potential impact of alternatives, including “value reporting,” to the current GAAP-based model. Witnesses included the chief accountant of the SEC; the chairman of the Financial Accounting Standards Board; and other experts from academia, a financial analysis firm, a public interest group, and the Attorney General of the State of Ohio.

CONSUMER RENTAL PURCHASE AGREEMENT ACT

To amend the Consumer Credit Protection Act to assure meaningful disclosures of the terms of rental-purchase agreements, including disclosures of all costs to consumers under such agreements, to provide certain substantive rights to consumers under such agreements, and for other purposes.

Summary

H.R. 1701, the Consumer Rental Purchase Agreement Act, establishes certain minimum standards governing rental-purchase transactions, in which consumers rent merchandise on a week-to-week or month-to-month basis, usually with no down payment required, and are free to terminate the arrangement at the end of any rental period. H.R. 1701 requires the merchant in a rent-to-own transaction to make a comprehensive set of disclosures regarding the total cost of the transaction to the consumer. The bill sets a Federal floor of protections in rental-purchase transactions, while leaving undisturbed those State laws that are determined by Federal regulators to offer greater protections to consumers. H.R. 1701 establishes as a matter of Federal law that rental-purchase transactions are leases rather than credit sales, consistent with their treatment under the laws of 46 of the 50 States. The treatment of these transactions as credit sales by 4 States would be preempted.

To provide regulatory relief and improve productivity for insured depository institutions, and for other purposes.

Summary

H.R. 3951 will alter or eliminate statutory banking provisions in order to lessen the regulatory compliance burden on insured depository institutions and improve their productivity, as well as to make needed technical corrections to current statutes. It is also intended to counterbalance the additional regulatory burden placed on insured depository institutions in the USA PATRIOT Act to focus their compliance efforts on combating money laundering and terrorist financing. FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE REFORM ACT OF 2002

(H.R. 3717)

To reform the Federal deposit insurance system, and for other purposes.

Summary

H.R. 3717, the Federal Deposit Insurance Reform Act of 2002, will preserve the value of insured deposits at insured depository institutions, advance the national priority of enhancing retirement security for all Americans, and ensure that the value, benefit and costs of deposit insurance are allocated equitably and fairly. The bill merges the Bank Insurance Fund (BIF) and the Savings Association Insurance Fund (SAIF); increases the standard maximum deposit insurance limit from $100,000 to $130,000, and indexes it every 5 years for inflation; doubles the new coverage level for certain retirement accounts; and increases the coverage amount for in-

State municipal deposits. Federally chartered credit unions are provided with parity in general standard maximum deposit insurance coverage, coverage for retirement accounts and municipal deposits.

H.R. 3717 removes legal constraints on the authority of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) to charge risk-based premium assessments, so that all insured depository institutions pay for the value and benefit of deposit insurance fairly and equitably. The legislation authorizes the FDIC to set the ratio of reserves to estimated insured deposits within a range of 1.15-1.40 percent, replacing the 1.25 percent "hard target" mandated by current law. The bill also returns assessments in the form of refunds, credits, and dividends to insured depository institutions for overpayments they have made and/or whenever the fund's level is considered strong and the financial and economic outlook is considered favorable. Dividends are provided to qualified insured depository institutions whenever the upper limits of the designated reserve ratio (DRR) are exceeded.

Finally, the legislation directs the FDIC to study its administrative and managerial processes and alternative means for administering the deposit insurance system. These studies will ensure that the deposit insurance fund and the overall deposit insurance system are managed and operated as efficiently and as effectively as possible.

H.R. 3717, the Federal Deposit Insurance Reform Act of 2002, was introduced on February 12, 2002 by Mr. Bachus and 15 original cosponsors and referred to the Committee on Financial Services. The bill was referred to the Subcommittee on Financial Institutions and Consumer Credit on March 1, 2002.

BUSINESS FREEDOM CHECKING ACT

(H.R. 1009)

To repeal the prohibition on the payment of interest on demand deposits.

Summary

H.R. 1009, the Business Checking Freedom Act of 2002, permits the payment of interest on business checking accounts held by businesses, and allow up to 24 transfers per month between accounts by any account holder. Current law forbids such accounts from drawing interest. The legislation also authorizes the Federal Reserve to pay interest on deposits with a Federal Reserve Bank that a bank is required by law to hold as reserves against customer deposits. The legislation directs the Federal Reserve to conduct a survey of bank fees and services. The legislation would also require the Federal Reserve to transfer surplus funds to the general fund of the Treasury.

Legislative History

H.R. 1009 was introduced in the House on March 13, 2001 by Mr. Toomey with 6 original cosponsors and referred to the Committee on Financial Services. The bill was referred to the Subcommittee on Financial Institutions and Consumer Credit on March 21, 2001.

The Subcommittee on Financial Institutions and Consumer Credit met in open session on March 21, 2001, and approved H.R. 1009 for full Committee consideration by a voice vote. Accordingly, the Committee laid H.R. 1009 upon the table by unanimous consent.

Due to Senate inaction on H.R. 974, on April 9, 2002 the House considered H.R. 1009 under suspension of the rules and passed the bill by a voice vote. No further action was taken on the measure in the 107th Congress.

SMALL BUSINESS INTEREST CHECKING ACT

(H.R. 974)

To increase the number of interaccount transfers which may be made from business accounts at depository institutions, to authorize the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System to pay interest on reserves, and for other purposes.

Summary

H.R. 974, the Small Business Interest Checking Act of 2001, permits the payment of interest on business checking accounts held. Current law forbids such accounts from drawing interest. The legislation also authorizes the Federal Reserve to pay interest on deposits with a Federal Reserve Bank that a bank is required by law to hold as reserves against customer deposits. Current law does not provide for interest payments on such deposits, leading to the characterization of such deposits as “sterile reserves”. By allowing the Federal Reserve to pay interest on such deposits, H.R. 974 would create an incentive for banks to avoid circumventing the reserve deposit requirement, and would help the Federal Reserve conduct monetary policy. The legislation would also require the Federal Reserve to transfer surplus funds to the general fund of the Treasury.

Legislative History

H.R. 974 was introduced on March 13, 2001 by Ms. Kelly and 2 original cosponsors, and was referred to the Committee on Financial Services. On March 20, 2002, the bill was referred to the Subcommittee on Financial Institutions and Consumer Credit.

The Subcommittee on Financial Institutions and Consumer Credit met in open session on March 21, 2001, and approved H.R. 974 for full Committee consideration by a voice vote. On March 28, 2001, the Committee on Financial Services met in open markup session and ordered H.R. 974 reported to the House with an amendment consisting of the text of H.R. 1009, the Small Business Interest Checking Act of 2001. The Committee on Financial Services reported the measure to the House on April 3, 2001 (H. Rept. 107-38). On April 3, 2001 the House considered the bill under suspension of the rules and passed H.R. 974 by a voice vote. No further action was taken on this measure in the 107th Congress.

The hearing focused on strategies for tracing and repatriating the proceeds of corruption, including the successful efforts of the Swiss government to arrange the return to Nigeria of nearly a billion dollars allegedly stolen by that country's former military ruler Sani Abacha. The hearing featured testimony by private sector experts on corruption, financial crime, and asset recovery.

HOUSING AFFORDABILITY FOR AMERICA ACT OF 2002

To amend and extend certain laws relating to housing and community opportunity, and for other purposes.

Summary

H.R. 3995, the Housing Affordability for America Act made reforms to existing housing programs to increase flexibility for local governments and programs, increase the availability of affordable housing and expand home ownership opportunities across the country.

Section 101, as introduced, amended the HOME program to provide specific funding and targeted HOME funds for multifamily production and rehabilitation of units primarily for very-low income and extremely-low income families and individuals. The Committee, during markup, approved an amendment replacing section 101 with a matching grant program to State and local housing trust funds. Of the total money available for matching funds, 40 percent would go to participating States and 60 percent to participating jurisdictions. These grants would be administered through the HOME investment partnership program. States and localities would be required to use these grants for the production, preservation or rehabilitation of affordable housing for very low and extremely low-income families. H.R. 3995 authorized a down payment assistance initiative under the HOME program to provide low income families with down payment assistance in order to achieve the goal of home ownership. Additional changes to increase flexibility and improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the HOME program were included.

H.R. 3995 provided new and more efficient ways to assist first-time home buyers, including helping low-income buyers purchase their first home is the FHA program, encouraging home ownership opportunities, and increasing the supply of affordable rental housing nationwide.

In the FHA Multifamily Housing program, H.R. 3995 indexed FHA mortgage multifamily limits to reflect building, land and impact fee cost increases in the future; and, increased the maximum high-cost percentage allowing for production in extremely expensive markets. Moreover, the bill included provisions to modernize the thirty-year old healthcare mortgage insurance programs of sections 232 and 242 of the National Housing Act to make them more consistent with today's method of delivering healthcare and assisted living services for the elderly, sick, injured and disabled.

Regarding the FHA Single Family Housing program, H.R. 3995 made permanent the FHA down payment simplification calculation; modified the cap on FHA adjustable-rate mortgages; and established a uniform national loan limit for HECM. H.R. 3995 also made changes to the FHA program to tighten requirements and administration of the 203(k) FHA—the single family rehabilitation loan program.

For the elderly, H.R. 3995 provided ways to rehabilitate and preserve existing elderly housing by establishing a demonstration program for elderly housing for multigenerational families and for grandparent-headed households; authorized grants for the repair of Federally assisted housing for the elderly; and set uniform loan limits for reverse mortgages used by senior homeowners.

To better meet the housing needs of low income families, H.R. 3995 included provisions to increase payment standards and to allow Public Housing Authorities to use up to 2 percent of funds to house “hard to house families.” It also included several administrative changes to the Public Housing programs designed to improve the efficiency and success of Public Housing Authorities. Under the HOPE VI program, which was designed to rehabilitate, demolish and/or reconstruct public housing for the most severely distressed developments, H.R. 3995 provided incentives for PHAs and private entities to form partnerships and create mixed-finance and mixed-income affordable housing; allowed smaller communities to participate in the program; and ensured that recipients used the money in a timely and cost-effective manner.

Regarding homelessness, H.R. 3995 reauthorized HUD's homeless programs through FY 2004 and funded renewals of contracts through the Housing Certificate Fund. In addition, the legislation set a national goal to end homelessness within 10 years. Moreover, H.R. 3995 reauthorized HOPWA (Housing Opportunities for Persons with AIDS), which houses individuals diagnosed with HIV/AIDS and their families through 2004.

H.R. 3995 reauthorized The Native American Housing Assistance and Self-Determination Act of 1996 (NAHASDA), which expired on September 30, 2002. The block grant program was established to provide housing assistance to eligible Indian Tribes or their tribally designated housing entities (TDHEs). Eligible tribes include both Federally recognized and, to a limited degree, certain State-recognized Indian tribes formerly eligible under the 1937 Act.

Title VIII of H.R. 3995 was designed to heighten public awareness of the costs to housing affordability of certain regulations when there is a significant adverse impact on housing affordability. H.R. 3995 required a housing impact analysis of any new rule of a Federal agency that has an economic housing impact of $100,000,000 or more.

Legislative History

On March 19, 2002, Mrs. Roukema and 22 cosponsors introduced H.R. 3995, the Housing Affordability for America Act of 2002, and the bill was referred to the Committee on Financial Services, and additionally to the Committee on the Judiciary. On April 10, 2002, the bill was referred to the Subcommittee on Housing and Community Opportunity.

No further action was taken on this measure in the 107th Congress.

BROWNFIELDS REDEVELOPMENT ENHANCEMENT ACT

(H.R. 2941)

To facilitate the provision of assistance by the Department of Housing and Urban Development for the cleanup and economic redevelopment of brownfields.

Summary

H.R. 2941, the Brownfields Redevelopment Enhancement Act, increased access to brownfields redevelopment funds for America's small communities by de-linking Section 108 loan guarantees from HUD's Brownfields Economic Development Initiative (BEDI) grants. The bill focused on providing access to capital for local entities that traditionally have had trouble obtaining financing for brownfields redevelopment activities. The bill also authorized HUD to establish a pilot program for a common brownfields redevelopment loan pool.

Legislative History

H.R. 2941 was introduced on September 21, 2001 by Mr. Gary G. Miller of California and three original cosponsors. The bill was referred to the Committee on Financial Services and to the Subcommittee on Housing and Community Opportunity on October 4, 2001. A hearing in the Subcommittee was held on March 6, 2002. Immediately following the hearing the Subcommittee met in open session and approved H.R. 2941 for full Committee consideration, as amended. On April 11, 2002, the Committee met in open session and ordered H.R. 2941 reported to the House with a favorable recommendation, with an amendment, by a voice vote. OVERSIGHT ACTIVITIES

FHA FINANCIAL HEALTH

On March 20, 2001, the Subcommittee on Housing and Community Opportunity held a hearing entitled "The Financial Health of the Federal Housing Administration's (FHA) Single-Family Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund." The impetus for the hearing were a GAO report, a HUD IG audit, and a CBO October 23, 2000 letter related to the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund (MMI). The first report represented the results of a GAO review of the adequacy of the statutorily required capital ratio standards. The second report presented the results of an annual audit of FHA's financial statements by the HUD Inspector General. The third document is an October 23, 2000 response to the Senate Housing Subcommittee regarding a MMI surplus. GAO, HUD IG, and CBO provided different perspectives on the health of the MMI and to what extent policymakers can make judgments. The health of the MMI is directly related to potential new home ownership initiatives that may require, for example, lower FHA premiums, targeted programs to vulnerable/selected populations, or the creation of a new housing production program.

HUD PROPOSED BUDGET FOR FISCAL YEAR 2002

On April 26, 2001, the Subcommittee held a hearing on the HUD FY 2002 proposed budget where Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Mel Martinez outlined the Administration's proposed a budget for the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) of approximately $30.4 billion. The HUD budget maintained funding for the Department's core programs, including CDBG and HOME, and requested 34,000 additional (incremental) section 8 vouchers. The Administration's budget also contained a number of new initiatives, including a "Down Payment Assistance Initiative" that would allow $200 million for matching downpayment assistance provided to families by third parties, up to $1,500 per family (set aside from the HOME program funds). The funds would be administered by State housing finance agencies and each year would help over 130,000 first-time low-income homebuyers.

In addition, the Administration proposed a new hybrid adjustable-rate mortgage that would work with tax incentives for savings, and proposed tax credits for rehabilitation and construction, to expand homeownership. Other initiatives provided in the Administration's HUD budget, included the "Community Technology Centers Initiative", which enhanced the Department's Neighborhood Networks program by providing $80 million in competitive grants to help communities create or expand technology centers in high poverty urban communities. Community Development Block Grant funding of $20 million would also be designated for use in the "Improving Access Initiative", to help religious and civic organizations, with limited resources, make their facilities accessible to the disabled.

HOUSING AFFORDABILITY

On May 3, 2001, the Subcommittee held the first in a series of hearings to outline the parameters of the problem of a lack of affordable housing and the complexity of the issues involved, as well as beginning discussions as to possible approaches to solutions. The witnesses in this hearing identified certain problems including, among others: inefficiencies in the HUD section 8 program that lead to low utilization rates, in various areas, of section 8 vouchers; income-targeting levels that are too low in the HOME and CDBG programs so that families that require assistance in high-cost areas are unassisted; burdensome and unnecessary local regulations that increase the cost of producing housing (such as "no-growth ordinances"); and multifamily loan limits on FHA multifamily loans that are too low to be effective in certain markets.

The second hearing, held on May 22, 2001, highlighted private activity and public/private partnerships that address affordable housing among various income sectors, as well as community development experts representing State and local governments specifically working with the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) and HOME Investment Partnerships (HOME) programs.

The third hearing, held on June 21, 2001, focused on the under-utilization of section 8 vouchers, as well as the specific problems faced by the homeless and disabled populations in finding affordable housing. In certain communities, voucher under-utilization is a significant problem. Under-utilization of vouchers was attributed to various causes including the tight rental market, poor performance by PHAs, targeting of a large percentage of vouchers to very low-income individuals, low fair market rents and rent caps of 40 percent of adjusted monthly income. While approximately 2.3 to 3 million people are homeless some part of the year, there are 150,000-200,000 people who are "chronically homeless." These individuals are not only poor, but also suffer from some sort of chronic health problem such as mental illness, alcoholism, drug abuse or HIV/AIDS. Under the Clinton Administration, HUD's strategy was to combine housing with services, known as "continuum of care," where HUD provided social services in addition to housing. Secretary Martinez has signaled an interest in shifting responsibility for care of the homeless with mental health or substance abuse problems to HHS.

The fourth hearing, held on July 17, 2001, focused on elderly housing programs and the difficult problems faced by the elderly in finding suitable affordable housing, as well as the coordination of housing and services. The Federal government operates several programs that provide housing for large numbers of elderly residents. For the past 40 years, the primary housing program for the elderly has been the Section 202 program. Since its inception, this program has produced approximately 350,000 housing units for occupancy by the elderly. Witnesses discussed the special needs of elderly residents and the integration of services with housing, as well as planning for aging-in-place. They also addressed the current supply of elderly housing, the prospects for maintaining the units within the various Federal programs, and suggestions for better operation of the existing programs.

NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM

On Thursday, July 19, 2001, the Subcommittee held a hearing regarding the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) and repetitive flood losses. The hearing addressed the flood program proposal contained in the Administration's FY 2002 budget proposal as well as two legislative proposals: H.R. 1428, the Two Floods and You are Out of the Taxpayer's Pocket Act of 2001, and H.R. 1551, the Repetitive Flood Loss Reduction Act of 2001. The National Flood Insurance Program was created as part of the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968. Prior to that time, insurance companies generally did not offer coverage for flood disasters because of the high risks involved. The legislation as amended in 1973 and 1994 authorizes the Federal Insurance Administration (FIA) and Mitigation Directorate to administer the NFIP as part of FEMA.

HUD PROPOSED BUDGET FOR FISCAL YEAR 2003

On February 13, 2002, the Subcommittee held a hearing on the proposed budget of the Department of Housing and Urban Development for fiscal year 2003 where the Honorable Mel Martinez, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, was the only witness. The Administration proposed a total HUD budget of $31.497 billion, which is a $2.1 billion increase from the enacted FY 2002 budget, representing close to a seven percent increase from $29.471 billion. This increase would account for several new initiatives to expand home ownership, increase rental vouchers for non-elderly disabled, provide flexible financing for public housing modernization, redirect community development resources to the Colonias as well as make housing counseling a separate program for coordination and targeting.

REVIEW OF THE COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANT PROGRAM

On March 14, 2002, the Subcommittee held a hearing entitled "Review of the Community Development Block Grant Program". The Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program is the largest source of Federal community development assistance to State and local governments. Communities may undertake eligible housing, community development, economic development, and public services activities. Funded activities must principally benefit low-and moderate-income persons, or eliminate or prevent slums and blight, or address a need that poses a threat to the health or safety of a community. Several witnesses provided testimony regarding proposals for improving the program. Specifically, witnesses addressed H.R. 1191, introduced by Ms. Meeks, which aims to restore the original intent of the CDBG program, to “principally” benefit lower income people.

REVIEW OF EMPOWERMENT ZONES AND RENEWAL COMMUNITIES

On April 10, 2002, the Subcommittee held a hearing entitled “Review of the Empowerment Zone/Enterprise Community program”. The hearing examined the EZ/EC program generally and focused on the discrepancy in funding between the Round I, II, and III zones. Witnesses addressed the progress of EZs in their respective States. Hearing testimony also addressed H.R. 2637, the Round II EZ/EC Flexibility Act of 2001, which authorizes appropriations to the Secretaries of Housing and Urban Development and Agriculture for specified urban and rural empowerment zones and permits the use of those funds for zone or community strategic plan implementation. The legislation also provided for the use of Federal funds to pay matching fund requirements and prevents an empowerment zone or enterprise community from losing Federal funding because of reclassification as a renewal community.

LEAKING UNDERGROUND STORAGE TANKS AND ITS AFFECT ON HOUSING & NEIGHBORHOODS

On Thursday, September 12, 2002, the Subcommittee on Housing and Community Opportunity held a hearing entitled “The Erosion of Communities and Home Values by Leaking Underground Storage Tanks”. To address a nationwide problem of leaking underground storage tanks (LUSTs), Congress established a prevention, detection, and corrective action program in 1984. In 1986, Congress subsequently created the Leaking Underground Storage Tank Trust Fund to help the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and states cover the costs of responding to petroleum LUSTs where owners fail to do so, and to oversee LUST cleanup activities. Witnesses testified about the public health and economic problems associated with leaking underground storage tanks and initiatives being undertaken to deal with them on the local, State and national levels. The witnesses also highlighted the impact that LUSTs have in the areas of environmental remediation, community and economic development, and safe housing.

NON-PROFIT CAPACITY BUILDING AND TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE

On Tuesday, September 17, 2002, the Subcommittee held a hearing on technical assistance and capacity building programs to promote housing and economic development. Over the past fifteen years, the nation’s 3,600 community-based development corporations (CDCs) have built 550,000 homes and apartments, produced 71 million square feet of commercial and industrial space, loaned $1.9 billion to 59,000 businesses, and created 247,000 private sector jobs. “Technical assistance” is any measure designed to build the capacity of a CDC to carry out initiatives in its community. Witnesses testified about local needs and on the need to ensure that community development groups are able to secure the resources needed to continue the important work of revitalizing communities.

MOLD: A GROWING PROBLEM

On Thursday, July 18, 2002, the Subcommittees on Housing and Community Opportunity and on Oversight and Investigations held a joint hearing to examine the extent of problems in the insurance and housing industry over mold. Mold-related claims by homeowners rose to over a billion dollars last year in just one State, approximately a five-fold increase over the previous year’s nationwide total. Across the U.S., homeowners’ insurers paid out $1.18 in losses and expenses for every $1 earned in premiums. Members of the scientific community testified on the current understanding of mold issues, and discussed the literature review by the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) now underway and due out this spring. Other witnesses discussed the sudden spike in mold litigation and remediation claims, and how these lawsuits are affecting the home building industry, unions, small businesses, and the insurance industry. In particular, the witnesses talked about the lack of scientific standards for measuring mold and determining the extent of any mold dangers, and the need for better guidance or proactive statements by Federal agencies.

ZIMBABWE DEMOCRACY AND ECONOMIC RECOVERY ACT

Public Law 107-99 (S. 494)

To provide for a transition to democracy and to promote economic recovery in Zimbabwe.

Summary

S. 494, the Zimbabwe Democracy and Economic Recovery Act of 2001, establishes that it is U.S. policy to support the people of Zimbabwe in their current struggles to effect peaceful, democratic change and achieve economic growth. It supports those goals by requiring the Secretary of the Treasury to review the feasibility of bilateral debt relief upon Presidential certification that certain conditions relating to democratic elections and the rule of law have been fulfilled. It expresses the sense of the Congress that if such a certification is made, the U.S. should propose a review of the feasibility of multilateral debt relief. Until such time as a Presidential certification is made, it instructs U.S. executive directors to the relevant international financial institutions to oppose financial assistance to Zimbabwe, except for basic human needs. The bill also authorizes bilateral assistance for land reform and democratic governance and expresses the sense of Congress that the President should consult with foreign governments on possible action against individuals responsible for the breakdown of the rule of law in Zimbabwe and the identification of overseas assets of those individuals.

Legislative History

S. 494 was introduced by Senator Frist on March 8, 2001. On July 12, 2001, the bill, as amended by a substitute, was ordered reported by the Committee on Foreign Relations without a written report. The legislation passed the Senate by unanimous consent on August 1, 2001.

The bill also extends the deadline for a General Accounting Office (GAO) report on the effectiveness of the fund. Secretary O'Neill highlighted the need to carefully review the operations of the IMF and the multilateral development banks (MDBs). Specifically, Secretary O'Neill called for increased transparency in these institutions, clear and essential goals for the MDBs, a movement from loans to grants and a focus on results-based performance indicators.

On February 28, 2002, the Full Committee on Financial Services held the second hearing of the 107th Congress on the state of the international financial system and IMF reform. The Committee again heard testimony from Secretary of the Treasury Paul O'Neill in which he called for the need to strengthen international cooperation to achieve economic growth and stability. Additionally, Secretary O'Neill outlined efforts to combat the financing of terrorist activities and to promote global free trade. Specifically, Secretary O'Neill discussed in detail the Administration's proposal to shift some of the financial aid provided by the World Bank from loans to grants.

WORLD BANK AND IMF ACTIVITIES IN AFRICA

On May 15, 2001, the Subcommittee on International Monetary Policy and Trade held an oversight hearing on the activities of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund (IMF) in Africa. On March 5, 2002, the Subcommittee held a second hearing on the economic crisis in Argentina. Witnesses on behalf of Carnegie Mellon University, Johns Hopkins University, the Institute for International Economics, and the Center for Economic Policy and Research testified before the Subcommittee, and outlined the causes and their proposed solutions to the dilemmas facing Argentina. THE EUROPEAN UNION'S FINANCIAL SERVICES ACTION PLAN AND IMPLICATIONS FOR THE AMERICAN FINANCIAL SERVICES INDUSTRY

On May 22, 2002, the Full Committee on Financial Services conducted a hearing on The European Union's Financial Services Action Plan (FSAP) and implications for the American financial services industry. In an effort to become the most competitive and dynamic knowledge-based economy in the world by 2010, the EU has embarked upon an ambitious plan to overhaul its financial services sector. Witnesses on behalf of the Federal Reserve Board, Treasury, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Securities Industry Association and academia testified on the FSAP and its short- and long-term effects. According to many of the witnesses, the EU's actions will generally have positive benefits for American financial services firms, and the U.S. government agencies represented at the hearing are working closely with their European counterparts. The Committee will continue to follow the FSAP as its provisions are implemented in the coming years.

NORTH AMERICAN DEVELOPMENT BANK

The Subcommittee on International Monetary Policy and Trade conducted two hearings which addressed the North American Development Bank (NADBank). On May 2, 2002, the Subcommittee conducted a hearing where private sector witnesses testified on the need to reform the NADBank. OVERSIGHT ACTIVITIES

EFFORTS BY FINANCIAL REGULATORS TO FIGHT FRAUD AND PROTECT CONSUMERS

On March 6, 2001, the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations and the Subcommittee on Financial Institutions and Consumer Credit held a joint hearing to examine ways in which financial regulators of the insurance, banking, and securities sectors are working together to protect consumers, as is required under the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act. The need to do so was highlighted by Martin Frankel, who migrated to the insurance industry after being barred from the securities industry. Frankel stole over $200 million from insurance companies before being captured. Witnesses included senior officials of the Treasury Department, FBI, SEC, insurance and business associations, and the General Accounting Office.

HOUSING AUTHORITY OF NEW ORLEANS

On June 4, 2001, the Subcommittee held a field hearing in New Orleans on the report issued by the HUD Inspector General on the lack of decent, safe, and sanitary housing provided by the Housing Authority of New Orleans (HANO). The report disclosed a lack of progress in providing quality housing since HUD and the City of New Orleans signed a 1996 Cooperative Endeavor Agreement. The report stated that after spending over $139 million of the $243 million it received just for modernization activities in the previous eight years, HANO had not revitalized even one of its conventional housing sites. HUD had spent, in total, over $800 million on HANO since 1992, without an improvement in housing for residents. The hearing also examined ways in which a judicial receivership could result in long-term improvements to the housing managed by HANO. Witnesses included the Mayor of New Orleans, the Regional Inspector General from HUD, a senior HUD official, and long-time residents of HANO. Committee and other New Orleans-area Members continued to discuss HANO's future with the HUD Secretary throughout the year.

IMPLEMENTATION OF EFT REQUIREMENTS OF THE DEBT COLLECTION IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 1996 AND THE USE OF ETAS

On June 20, 2001, the Subcommittee held a hearing to examine the status of the Electronic Funds Transfer requirements of the Debt Collection Improvement Act of 1996, known as the EFT 99 program, and to discuss the use Electronic Transfer Accounts, or ETAs. The purpose of the hearing was to determine the progress made towards a checkless system for paying Federal salaries, pensions, vendor payments, and Social Security benefits, whether the change has reduced costs, and whether low- and middle-income Federal payment recipients who do not have bank accounts are receiving their funds electronically through ETAs. Witnesses included the Treasury Department Assistant Secretary with responsibility over the program, the CEO of Banco Popular, which is heavily involved in the ETA program, and the Managing Attorney of the National Consumer Law Center. At the hearing, Chairwoman of the Subcommittee and its ranking minority member released a letter to GAO requesting a study of the EFT and ETA programs and recommendations for improvements.

THE SEC'S ROLE IN CAPITAL FORMATION

On June 26, 2001, the Subcommittee held a hearing to examine the SEC's role in capital formation. Capital formation has been an implicit responsibility of the SEC since it was first created. In 1996, securities laws were amended by the National Securities Markets Improvement Act to explicitly provide that capital formation is an important responsibility of the SEC. In that act, the SEC was given general exemptive authority to allow them to waive specific requirements on a case-by-case basis, in order to give the SEC additional flexibility in assisting businesses access to the capital markets. The hearing reviewed the progress the SEC has made in furtherance of its statutory responsibilities to assist capital formation and explored suggestions as to how the SEC's could make greater progress. Witnesses included representatives of venture capital firms and the Vice Chairman of the American Conservative Union.

FINANCIAL ASPECTS OF INTERNET GAMBLING

On July 12, 2001, the Subcommittee held a hearing to examine whether to take legislative action against internet gambling. In a few short years, the Internet gambling industry has exploded. According to an Internet gambling committee of the National Association of Attorneys General, there were less than 25 such sites on the Web in the mid-1990s. Today, one of the Nation's leading securities firms estimates that there are between 1,200 and 1,400 e-gaming Web sites. In 2000, the House Banking Committee approved legislation that would have tackled prohibited gambling operations from accepting credit cards, checks, or other bank instruments in connection with illegal Internet gambling. The 106th Congress adjourned without enacting that or any other legislation. The hearing examined the changes in the industry since the previous Congress and the possible impacts of legislation. Witnesses included officials from gaming associations, law enforcement agencies, State lotteries, the NCAA, and addiction treatment organizations.

OVER-REGULATION OF AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE

On August 1, 2001, the Subcommittee held a hearing on the effects of State over-regulation of auto insurance on consumer choice. In New Jersey, over one-half of the 15 largest auto insurers in the country have either left or will leave in the near future, claiming excessive rate regulation as the reason. Over one million people in New Jersey will lose their automobile insurance, with a dwindling supply of alternative companies willing to do business in the State. In Massachusetts, two-thirds of those same 15 largest insurers either write little or no business or refuse to do business at all in the State, for the same reason as in New Jersey. Conversely, in Illinois and South Carolina, there are numerous auto insurance companies providing consumers with real choices at competitive prices without subsidizing risky drivers with bad records. In South Carolina, the number of insurers accessible to consumers has doubled since the State eliminated artificial price controls. Witnesses included representatives from three major insurance associations, a Vice President of the Brookings Institution, and the Director of Insurance from the Consumer Federation of America.

PROBLEMS IN THE HUD SECTION 203(K) HOUSING PROGRAM

On September 10, 2001, the Subcommittee held a field hearing in Harlem, New York, on the fraud and severe management problems in the Section 203(k) housing program, under which HUD guarantees loans made to purchase and renovate single-family housing. Reports by the GAO and HUD OIG, and news organizations disclosed massive fraud in Harlem, Brooklyn, and the Bronx by speculators who took advantage of poor HUD oversight to bilk HUD and individual homebuyers out of tens of millions of dollars from 1995-2000. The HUD OIG has obtained convictions against several dozen people involved in the schemes. The hearing examined the extent of the fraud and the impacts on individual homebuyers and community development. Witnesses included the HUD Assistant Secretary with responsibility for the program, senior officials from GAO and the HUD OIG, local development leaders, the Commissioner of the New York City housing authority, and victims. The HUD Assistant Secretary announced HUD's intention to work with the New York City housing authority towards a solution to the problems. Late in December, 2001, HUD Secretary Martinez and New York City Mayor Giuliani announced a program under which HUD would contribute significantly to the completion of work on hundreds of units.

IDENTITY THEFT OF THE DECEASED

On November 8, 2001, the Subcommittee held a joint hearing with the Subcommittee on Social Security of the Committee on Ways and Means on preventing identity theft of the deceased by terrorists and criminals. The purpose of the hearing was to seek ways to ensure that the Death Master File (DMF) is transmitted more quickly from the Social Security Administration to the financial services industry, in order to protect families of the deceased from theft and financial fraud. The issue arose when a man detained in Great Britain, and suspected of training four of the terrorists who hijacked the airliners on September 11, was found to have used the Social Security number of a New Jersey woman who died in 1991. Witnesses included senior officials from the Social Security Administration and Commerce Department, GAO analysts who testified on the transmission and use of the DMF, attorneys representing the financial services industry, a special counsel with expertise in identity theft, and privacy advocates.

The Chairwoman of the Subcommittee, Ms. Kelly, secured the commitments of the parties towards a more rapid distribution of the DMF. Thereafter, the Social Security Administration and Commerce Department announced that beginning in February 2002, they would jointly reduce the amount of time needed to release the DMF from over 35 days to approximately 10 days.

IMPACTS OF ENRON COLLAPSE ON INVESTORS AND FINANCIAL MARKETS

On December 12, 2001, the Subcommittee held a joint hearing with the Subcommittee on Capital Markets, Insurance, and Government Sponsored Enterprises on the impacts of the collapse of Enron, Inc., the biggest bankruptcy in American history. The hearing examined the causes of the collapse as known at that time, including the use of special purpose entities and other accounting techniques by Enron that were reviewed and ratified by Arthur Andersen, Enron's auditor. The hearing also touched upon the SEC's oversight of the financial statements certified by accountants; the accounting rules that permitted Enron to not report billions of dollars in debt; and the actions of securities analysts following Enron, who failed to warn investors of its weakness. Witnesses included the Chief Accountant of the SEC, the Chief Executive Officer of Arthur Andersen, the Secretary-Treasurer of the AFL-CIO, and an expert on securities analysts.

THE PATRIOT ACT OVERSIGHT: INVESTIGATING PATTERNS OF TERRORIST FINANCING

On February 12, 2002, the Subcommittee held a hearing to examine the initial progress under title III of the USA PATRIOT Act (Public Law 107-56), signed by President Bush on October 26, 2001. The Act provided new tools to law enforcement to identify the patterns of financing used by terrorists and hence stop them before any future acts could occur. The Act also contained a number of provisions that seek to combat underground "Hawala" networks, and the hearing examined the investigative efforts have brought us closer to closing illegal Hawalas. Witnesses from the Treasury and Justice Department, the FBI, and private industry discussed the multilateral efforts to gather, disseminate, and use information about monetary flows in new ways to detect and prevent terrorism. Recent cases against suspected terrorist financiers were highlighted, and the witnesses discussed the balancing between investigatory requirements and the protection of civil liberties.

RETIREMENT PROTECTIONS: FIGHTING FRAUD IN THE SALE OF DEATH

On February 26, 2002, the Subcommittee held a hearing on the use and potential abuse of viatical settlements. Viatical settlements involve companies paying cash to purchase life insurance policies from terminally ill people at a fraction of the policy value and then reselling the policies to investors. The terminally ill individual gets immediate up-front cash, and the investors can get a significant return when the individual dies. Additional commissions go to the broker who negotiates the deal, the agent who finds the investors, the evaluators who review the individual's medical files, and the settlement company and escrow service. The hearing witnesses from the industry and State regulators talked about the importance of fighting viatical fraud and educating consumers about these investments, and in particular, the need to promote better consumer education for retirement planning by the elderly. The witnesses also discussed the critical need for coordination among Federal and State agencies, and the ongoing desirability of expanded coordination and access to criminal and disciplinary databases, such as through the Financial Services Antifraud Network Act of 2001.

HOW MUCH ARE AMERICANS AT RISK UNTIL CONGRESS PASSES TERRORISM INSURANCE PROTECTION?

On February 27, 2002, the Subcommittee held the first Congressional hearing to examine the implications of a lack of terrorism insurance. In the five months since September 11, the risk for terrorism-related losses had been shifted from reinsurers to primary insurers and then to the insured. Reinsurers and insurers had begun shedding their exposure to terrorism risk as insurance contracts came up for renewal, leaving policy holders increasingly exposed to losses from a terrorist attack. Numerous officials for the insurance and construction industries, the Treasury Department, State regulators, the GAO, and other interested parties testified or submitted statements for the record on the negative impacts that the lack of insurance was having on major construction projects and employment.

THE EFFECTS OF THE GLOBAL CROSSING BANKRUPTCY ON INVESTORS, MARKETS, AND EMPLOYEES

On March 21, 2002, the Subcommittee held the first Congressional hearing on the impacts and causes of the bankruptcy of Global Crossing, Ltd., then the fourth biggest bankruptcy in the history of the United States. The hearing examined the impacts and propriety of the accounting model for the recognition of income from trades, or "swaps," of high-speed fiber-optic telecom cable capacity. Each telecom company reports expected income from such swaps, or “pro forma” results, differently, since such future earnings need not be reported for in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles. Witnesses included the Chief Executive Officer and the Chief Financial Officer of Global Crossing; senior executives from Qwest Communications International, WorldCom, Inc., and Cable & Wireless Global; a representative from the SEC; and two telecom analysts. After the hearing, the Committee continued to investigate the bankruptcy, the sale of the company to foreign interests, and the company’s ties to stock analysts and investment banking firms (see below). In August, Qwest officials clarified and corrected its testimony after investigations revealed discrepancies in its accounting for swaps, resulting in sizable restatements in earnings for prior periods.

ONE BROKER GONE BAD: PUNISHING THE CRIMINAL, MAKING VICTIMS WHOLE

On May 23, 2002, the Subcommittee held the first Congressional hearing to examine the activities of indicted former Cleveland stockbroker, Frank Gruttadauria. Gruttadauria was the manager of the Cleveland branch of Lehman Brothers, and at the time of the hearing was alleged to have stood accused of having defrauded his clients of as much as $300 million over a 15-year period. The goals of the hearing were to determine the extent of the losses suffered by his clients, and whether control systems in the industry and the SEC failed to detect and thwart his activity. Committee reviews of SEC documents prior to the hearing revealed that the SEC missed 1993 evidence of “account-churning” that could have prevented years of fraud and millions of dollars in victim losses. The Speaker of the House introduced his constituent, who suffered major losses due to Gruttadauria’s activities. The SEC and witnesses from Lehman Brothers, SG Cowen and CO., the NYSE, the NASD, and NASAA pledged their cooperation in strengthening compliance departments and placing more emphasis on tougher enforcement. The hearings made it clear that appropriate efforts need to be undertaken by the SEC and the Self-Regulatory Agencies (SROs) to ensure improvements in information sharing and revisions in relevant rules, regulations and guidelines against nefarious activities by broker/dealers. The NYSE and NASD thereafter proposed new rules for the SEC’s approval. On November 14, 2002, Gruttadauria was sentenced to seven years in prison for his illegal acts.

FIGHTING DISCRIMINATION AGAINST THE DISABLED AND MINORITIES THROUGH FAIR HOUSING ENFORCEMENT

On June 25, 2002, the Subcommittees on Housing and Community Opportunity and on Oversight and Investigations held a joint hearing on the extent of discrimination against the disabled and minorities and HUD’s efforts to fight such discrimination. Past leadership at HUD failed to process fair housing cases in a timely manner. At the end of FY 2000, the percentage of fair housing cases remaining open past the statutory deadline of 100 days was over 80 percent. At the end of the first fiscal year of the Bush Administration, FY 2001, the aged-case inventory had been reduced to 37.1 percent, the first time since the passage of Fair Housing Act Amendments of 1988 that HUD's aged-case backlog has dropped below 50 percent. Housing consultants and a senior HUD official testified about the past lack of attention to the caseload and current HUD leadership's efforts to reduce the caseload.

MOLD: A GROWING PROBLEM

On Thursday, July 18, 2002, the Subcommittees on Housing and Community Opportunity and on Oversight and Investigations held a joint hearing to examine the extent of problems in the insurance and housing industry over mold. Mold-related claims by homeowners rose to over a billion dollars last year in just one State, approximately a five-fold increase over the previous year's nationwide total. Across the U.S., homeowners' insurers paid out $1.18 in losses and expenses for every $1 earned in premiums. Members of the scientific community testified on the current understanding of mold issues, and discussed the literature review by the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) now underway and due out this spring. Other witnesses discussed the sudden spike in mold litigation and remediation claims, and how these lawsuits are affecting the home building industry, unions, small businesses, and the insurance industry. In particular, the witnesses talked about the lack of scientific standards for measuring mold and determining the extent of any mold dangers, and the need for better guidance or proactive statements by Federal agencies.

CATASTROPHIC BONDS: SPREADING RISK

On October 8, 2002, the Subcommittee held a hearing on the role of risk-linked securities—in particular, "cat" bonds—to facilitate greater capacity in traditional catastrophic insurance markets. The General Accounting Office presented a report, requested by the House Financial Services Committee, examining the role of these securities and current factors affecting their use. The report findings were categorized into four regulatory, accounting, tax, and investor areas: (1) regulatory—the regulatory accounting treatment of securitization, and how risk transfer from non-indemnity based coverage (securitization compensation based on the size of an event) can be adjusted to allow credit similar to traditional indemnity based reinsurance (compensation based on an insurer's losses); (2) accounting—the effect of a proposed capitalization requirement interpretation on SPRV's as put forward by FASB, and whether increasing the equity requirements in these vehicles would prohibitively increase the costs of securitization; (3) tax—allowing for "pass-through" tax treatment of these instruments at the SPRV level (whether there's a double taxation of the investment); and (4) investment—the difficulty of assessing and disclosing the risks of these instruments by fund managers and other institutional investors. The Subcommittee received additional testimony and from the National Association of Insurance Commissioners regarding their activities to facilitate and reduce regulatory barriers to the catastrophic financial market, as well as the bond market industry, a reinsurance company, and one of the largest bond placement companies in the United States.

OVERSIGHT PLAN FOR THE 107TH CONGRESS

Clause 2(d) of rule X of the Rules of the House of Representatives for the 107th Congress requires that each standing committee in the first session of a congress adopt an oversight plan for the two-year period of the Congress and submit the plan to the Committee on Government Reform and the Committee on House Administration.

Clause 1(d)(1) of rule XI requires each committee to submit to the House not later than January 2 of each odd-numbered year, a report on the activities of that committee under rules X and XI during the Congress ending on January 3 of such year. Clause 1(d)(3) of rule XI also requires that the report include a summary of the oversight plans submitted pursuant to clause 2(d) of rule X; a summary of the actions taken and recommendations made with respect to each such plan; and a summary of any additional oversight activities undertaken by the committee and any recommendations made or actions taken thereon.

Part A of this section contains the Oversight Plan of the Committee on Financial Services for the One Hundred Seventh Congress., which the Committee considered and adopted on February 14, 2001.

Part B of this section contains a summary of the actions taken to implement that plan and the recommendations made with respect to the plan. Additional oversight activities undertaken by the Committee, and the recommendations made or actions taken thereon, are contained in the specific sections relating to the activities of the full Committee and each of the subcommittees.

Part A

OVERSIGHT PLAN FOR THE COMMITTEE ON FINANCIAL SERVICES FOR THE ONE HUNDRED SEVENTH CONGRESS

February 14, 2001.—Approved by the Committee on Financial Services

Clause 2(d)(1) of rule X of the Rules of the House requires each standing Committee, not later than February 15 of the first session, to adopt an oversight plan for the 107th Congress. The oversight plan must be submitted simultaneously to the Committee on Government Reform and the Committee on House Administration.

The following agenda constitutes the oversight plan of the Committee on Financial Services for the 107th Congress. It includes areas in which the Committee and its subcommittees expect to conduct oversight during this Congress but does not preclude oversight or investigation of additional matters or programs as they arise. The Committee will consult, as appropriate, with other committees of the House that may share jurisdiction on any of the subjects listed below.

MONETARY POLICY ISSUES

Federal Reserve's Conduct of Monetary Policy. The Committee will hold hearings on the Federal Reserve Board's (Fed's) semi-annual reports on the conduct of U.S. monetary policy. The Chairman of the Board of Governors will appear regularly before the Committee to address issues associated with monetary policy and the state of the economy, such as past and prospective developments in employment, productivity, and investment.

INTERNATIONAL FINANCIAL ISSUES

Annual report and testimony by the Secretary of the Treasury on International Monetary Fund (IMF) Reform and the State of the International Financial System. The Committee will review and hold hearings on the annual reports to Congress from the Secretary of the Treasury on the IMF and the state of the international financial system. Pursuant to Section 613 of Public Law 105-277, the Committee will hear annual testimony from the Secretary of the Treasury on: (1) progress made in reforming the IMF; (2) the status of efforts to reform the international financial system; and (3) compliance by borrower countries with the terms and conditions of IMF assistance.

Reauthorization of the Export-Import Bank of the United States. With the authority of the Export-Import Bank of the United States set to expire at the end of FY 2001, the Committee will review the merits of extending and revising the charter of the Bank. In particular, the Committee will examine the extent to which the Bank's competitiveness has been eroded through the use of "untied aid" arrangements by foreign export credit agencies, as well as the development of so-called "market window" lending institutions by several trade competitors. In addition, the Committee will assess the appropriateness of current guidelines under which the President (acting through the Secretary of State) may block Exim financing because of foreign policy considerations.

U.S. Contributions to the International Financial Institutions. The Committee will review U.S. participation in, and the effectiveness of U.S. policy toward, the IMF, the World Bank Group, and the regional development banks.

Trade in Financial Services. The Committee will review the International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD) organization, the Administration's efforts in the World Trade Organization (WTO) Services Negotiations, and through bilateral agreements (such as the proposed free trade agreements with Chile and Singapore, and the secret memorandum developed as part of the United States - Japan bilateral insurance agreement) to achieve market-opening liberalization in financial services. The Committee will include in its review current efforts to open foreign insurance markets and maintain transparency in insurance regulation and negotiation.

International Financial Services Privacy. The Committee will review the implementation and negotiation of international privacy standards, and the application of those standards to American companies. The review will be conducted in coordination with the Committee's oversight of the financial privacy provisions of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (GLB) discussed below.

Coordination of International Financial Services Programs. The Committee will review the coordination among various Executive branch agencies in promoting financial services trade, including the priority and rank of such programs and program officials.

World Bank AIDS Trust Fund. The Committee will monitor and conduct necessary oversight activities regarding the implementation of legislation passed by the 106th Congress (Public Law 106-264) to authorize an international trust fund, led by the U.S. and other donors, to address the AIDS crisis through support of HIV/AIDS prevention, education and treatment efforts in sub-Saharan Africa and other hard-hit regions.

Holocaust Claims. The Committee will actively review efforts to ensure that restitution is made to Holocaust victims and heirs for confiscated bank accounts or payable insurance claims.

Basel Capital Rules. The Committee will review new rules for bank capital under consideration by the Basel Commission.

International Debt Relief. The Committee will monitor and conduct necessary oversight activities regarding the implementation of legislation passed by the 106th Congress to authorize U.S. funding for the Enhanced Heavily Indebted Poor Country (HIPC) Initiative. The Committee will assess progress made by the IMF and World Bank in granting multilateral debt relief to qualified HIPC countries. The Committee will also monitor the development and adoption of poverty reduction strategies by the HIPC countries, and will assess compliance with other conditions on U.S. funding specified in the authorizing legislation.

ECONOMIC GROWTH

Capital Formation. The Committee recognizes that capital formation is a crucial economic issue, particularly in the global information economy. New businesses must be able to attract capital to enter the marketplace. Established businesses must be able to attract capital to expand and compete. The Committee will closely examine all laws, policies, and regulations within its jurisdiction to encourage capital formation and eliminate barriers to it, including barriers with respect to underserved communities.

Investment Company Act of 1940 and New Economy Businesses. The Committee will review the impact of the Investment Company Act of 1940 on “incubator funds” and other capital formation vehicles that have been important to new economy businesses.

Development of Economic Opportunities. The Committee will review economic development programs under the Committee’s jurisdiction, including programs administered by the Appalachian Regional Commission, the Economic Development Administration, and the newly created Delta Regional Authority.

Community Development Financial Institutions (CDFI) Fund. In reviewing the expired authorization of the CDFI Fund, created in 1994 to promote economic revitalization and community development, the Committee will examine the record of the Fund in implementing reforms pledged in 1997 to eliminate irregularities in the grant making process identified during the course of an investigation by the Subcommittee on General Oversight. The Committee will monitor the CDFI Fund’s implementation of the New Markets Tax Credits program, which was part of the Renewable Communities and New Markets initiative enacted into law during the 106th Congress.

PRIME. The Committee will examine the implementation of a new microenterprise lending program—the Program for Investment in Microentrepreneurs Act, otherwise known as the PRIME Act—that was included in GLB.

Reauthorization of the Defense Production Act. The Committee will review the performance of the Defense Production Act in preparation for its possible reauthorization.

FINANCIAL SERVICES INDUSTRY/CONSUMER PROTECTION

FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

Implementation of Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (GLB). The Committee will undertake a comprehensive review of implementation of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (Public Law 106-102), the landmark financial modernization legislation enacted in the 106th Congress. Among the issues that may be examined are regulatory and industry implementation of the Act’s provisions governing financial privacy, merchant banking, financial holding company requirements, the implementation of GLB consumer protections governing the sale of insurance, securities, and banking products, and Community Reinvestment Act (CRA) sunshine provisions. The review may also identify potential changes to GLB to facilitate innovation in the financial services sector while protecting the safety and soundness of financial institutions.

Financial Privacy and Consumers. In addition to reviewing implementation of the privacy provisions of GLB, the Committee will hold hearings to identify and address existing and emerging threats to the privacy of financial information and assess the adequacy of governmental and industry efforts to combat such threats. The Committee will consider whether further reforms may be needed to protect consumer identities and to allocate further responsibility for protecting and fixing consumer credit after an identity theft occurs. The Committee will consult, as appropriate, with other relevant Committees in addressing these issues.

Electronic Signatures Legislation: Effect on Financial Services Industry. In light of the recent enactment of the Electronic Signatures in Global and National Commerce Act (Public Law 106-229), the Committee will monitor the financial services industry to ensure that it is able to provide new services to consumers without the potentially anti-competitive obstacles of outdated statutes, and that consumers continue to receive appropriate disclosures as required by law.

Money Laundering. The Committee will review enforcement of anti-money laundering laws and regulations, including the annual National Money Laundering Strategy submitted by the administration pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 5341 (Public Law 105-310), and the money laundering vulnerabilities associated with so-called "offshore secrecy havens".

Contract Netting Improvement. The Committee will review banking and bankruptcy insolvency laws with respect to the termination and netting of financial contracts. Legislation which would have ensured the orderly disposition of financial contracts held by bankrupt counterparties passed the House three times in the 106th Congress, and passed the Senate as part of a comprehensive bankruptcy reform package which was vetoed by the previous Administration.

Deposit Insurance Reform. The Committee will conduct a comprehensive analysis of all aspects of Federal deposit insurance to determine whether any changes to the system are necessary. The Committee seeks to ensure the continued safety and soundness of the financial system and reduce the possibility of a crisis similar to the savings and loan debacle of the late 1980's and early 1990's. The review will encompass issues relating to the banking, thrift, and credit union industries. Some of the specific issues that may be included in this analysis are: (1) merger of the Bank Insurance Fund (BIF) and the Savings Association Insurance Fund (SAIF) to reduce the risk of fund insolvency; (2) options regarding deposit insurance pricing and coverage; (3) the appropriateness of the current minimum ratio of the funds to insured deposits and the effect of changes in the deposit insurance system on the reserve ratio and potential taxpayer liability; and (4) examination of whether any cost savings to banks and thrifts resulting from deposit insurance reform are passed on to customers.

First Accounts/ETAs. The Consolidated Appropriations Act for 2001, H.R. 4490, included $2 million in funding for a pilot program of the Administration's First Accounts Initiative. This initiative is intended to extend traditional banking services to Americans who, for various reasons, do not now have checking or savings accounts or any other relationship with a bank or other financial services firm, and rely upon usually higher-cost alternatives to cash checks or make payments. In addition to monitoring the First Accounts Initiative, the Committee will continue to monitor the Administration's implementation of EFT 99-which required most social security, veterans benefits, and other Federal payments to be made by electronic funds transfer rather than paper check-and review the implementation, including the costs and benefits, of the new electronic transfer accounts (ETAs).

Benefits and Risks of Industry Consolidation. The Committee will review the benefits derived from consolidation in the financial services industry as well as the findings of a G-10 report on potential systemic risks associated with consolidation. Potential issues for oversight include financial institution examinations, market discipline, taxpayer liability, and global implications.

State of the Industry. The Committee will require the Federal regulators to report periodically on the state of the banking, thrift, and credit union industries in order to alert Congress to any emerging weaknesses in the financial sector and supervisory measures being taken to counter such weaknesses. Recent reports on weaknesses in credit quality and decreased earnings performance highlight the need to exercise Congressional oversight. Conflicting issues, such as tightened underwriting standards versus the potential for a credit crunch, illustrate the complexity and importance of such oversight. Additionally, recent warnings on credit quality underscore the importance of ensuring that bank regulators and bank management have sufficient flexibility to set appropriate levels of loan loss reserves. Finally, the Committee will continue to monitor proposed changes to accounting standards relating to loan loss reserves.

The Riegle-Neal Interstate Banking and Branching Efficiency Act of 1994. This statute updated Federal law to provide a framework for mergers and acquisitions of banks across State lines. The Committee will review whether the widespread use of the Internet and the evolution of the financial services industry since enactment of this law have made its provisions obsolete. Additionally, the Committee will review redundant geographic restrictions under the Home Owners' Loan Act (HOLA), national and State caps on deposit concentrations, and issues relating to preemption of State laws by the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) and the Office of Comptroller of the Currency (OCC).

Credit Unions. The Committee will continue its oversight of the implementation of the Credit Union Membership Access Act of 1998 by the National Credit Union Administration (NCUA). Other issues relating to the credit union industry will also be reviewed, including powers of Federally-chartered credit unions versus State-chartered institutions.

Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA). The Committee will conduct a comprehensive review of the FCRA, with a focus on such issues as legislation pertaining to the Federal Trade Commission staff opinion letter (the so-called “Vail letter”) relating to employer investigations of employee misconduct, the accuracy of consumer credit reports, and the disclosure of credit scores.

Fair Debt Collection Practices Act (FDCPA). The Committee will review this statute, particularly in view of the growth of routine bundling and selling of loans by the loan originator.

Brokered Certificates of Deposit. The Committee will review whether adequate protections and disclosures exist for purchasers of brokered CDs.

Regulatory Burden Reduction. The Committee will continue to analyze measures to reduce unnecessary burdens resulting from outdated and unnecessary laws and regulations. Included in this area are proposals to end the prohibition on banks paying interest on business checking accounts and to permit the Federal Reserve to pay interest on reserves of depository institutions held at Federal Reserve Banks. The Committee will review whether cost savings achieved through regulatory burden reduction are passed on to customers.

“Know-Your-Customer” Rules. In light of the controversy over the “Know Your Customer” anti-money laundering regulation proposed and later withdrawn by Federal banking regulators, the Committee will review recent regulatory and industry initiatives to promote enhanced scrutiny of so-called “high-risk” accounts or transactions.

Ergonomics Rule and the Financial Services Industry. The Committee will review the regulatory impact, including potential costs and benefits, of the new Federal ergonomics rule on the financial services industry.

Consumer Protections. In addition to consumer issues addressed elsewhere in this oversight plan, the Committee will consider other issues concerning protections for consumers of financial services, such as recent financial literacy initiatives; the effect on consumers of industry consolidation, including acquisitions of commercial lending operations by insured depository institutions; the growth of alternatives to traditional banking branches and services; enforcement of the provisions of the Consumer Leasing Act; and the scheduled sunset of the Truth in Savings Act’s civil liability provisions.

SECURITIES

Securities Market Structure. The Committee will initiate a comprehensive review of the regulatory structure of the National Market System, including international considerations, with an eye toward overhauling the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 to promote greater competition, efficiency and transparency in the securities markets.

Improving Market Interconnection and Competition. The Committee will review the intermarket trading system, including its present and emerging international features, which connects various market centers and consider how that system can be improved to take better advantage of modern technologies and thereby promote greater competition and efficiency in the marketplace.

Regulatory Conflicts Arising From Increasing Convergence of Financial Services Firms. The Committee will examine the implications of increasing affiliations among financial services firms in the wake of GLB. Included in this review will be the implications for investors of certain restrictions under section 17 of the Investment Company Act of 1940.

Accessibility of Market Data. The Committee will review the regulations governing securities market data and other financial market databases, and consider proposals to improve the content and accessibility of market data, as well as to promote competition and efficiency in the provision of that data. This review will include consideration of legislative proposals affecting the rights of users and publishers of financial market databases.

Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) Reauthorization and Review. The Committee will review the budget request by the SEC and consider reauthorization of the Commission. In addition, the Committee will review the organizational structure of the Commission, including the functioning of each division, as well as the Office of Economic Analysis, to ensure the Commission is efficiently and effectively carrying out its mission to promote capital formation and protect investors.

SEC Fees. The Committee will consider proposals to reduce fees charged to securities markets participants. These fees, originally imposed to finance the SEC, have generated revenues exceeding the cost of running the agency by several times, effectively resulting in a tax on capital and a significant burden on investors.

Social Security and Investor-Directed Retirement Accounts. The Committee will examine proposals to reform Social Security by providing for investor-directed retirement accounts, and consider these proposals' impact on the capital markets and their implications for investors. The Committee will consider changes to the Federal securities laws to promote competition and ensure investor protection in connection with the creation of such investor-directed retirement accounts.

Stock Options. The Committee will examine the regulations governing the use of, and accounting for, stock options, and consider what improvements might be needed to enhance their utility for public companies and their investors and employees. In conducting this review, the Committee will consult, as appropriate, with other Committees.

Investor Access to Initial Public Offerings. The Committee will consider the allocation of IPOs and the efficiency and fairness of their allocation, including public access to IPOs as well as how IPO allocation affects the efficient promotion of capital formation.

Technology in the Securities Markets. The Committee will review the extent to which SEC regulations promote the efficient use of the Internet to provide investors access to information about investments, including prospectus delivery. The Committee will also review practices by, and regulations governing, on-line brokerage firms as well as questions raised by the use of the Internet and other new technologies in connection with securities transactions.

New Investment Products. The Committee will monitor developments in new mechanisms allowing investors to access the securities markets online to ensure robust competition and continued investor protection.

Decimal Trading. The Committee will closely monitor and review the implementation of decimal pricing in the securities markets to ensure speedy and efficient implementation of decimal pricing throughout the securities marketplace, consistent with the goal of the Common Cents Stock Pricing Act of 1997.

Mutual Fund Disclosure. The Committee will monitor the implementation of new rules regarding disclosure of after-tax returns to mutual fund investors, as well as other disclosure requirements, to ensure these requirements maximize useful information for investors, consistent with efficiency and competition in the mutual fund marketplace.

Bond Market. The Committee will monitor the implementation of the Trade Reporting and Comparison Entry Service (TRACE) and consider methods to improve transparency and competition in the bond market.

Self-Regulatory Organizations. The Committee will examine the implications for competition in the marketplace of the existing SRO structures, in light of imminent public offerings by several SROs, as well as the implications to competition in the marketplace of SRO regulations, and the role of the SEC in overseeing those regulations.

SEC Exemptive Authority. The National Securities Markets Improvement Act of 1996 provided new exemptive authority to the SEC. The Committee will monitor the Commission's use of this authority to promote more efficient regulation and greater competition in the marketplace, and to eliminate burdensome regulation.

Commodity Futures Modernization Act Implementation. The Committee will review the implementation of the Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000 to ensure the continued success of the U.S. derivatives markets and prevent unnecessary regulatory burdens on those markets. The Committee will monitor the actions of the SEC and the Commodities Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) to ensure the agencies' actions are consistent with the deregulatory spirit of the Act. In addition, the Committee will review disclosure and other requirements for the accounting of derivatives by financial institutions to ensure antifraud protections in place are consistent with investor protection, capital formation, competition, and efficiency in the securities markets.

Accounting Standards: Protection Against Fraud and International Harmonization. The Committee will review accounting standards and interpretations set forth by the Financial Accounting Standards Board as they pertain to anti-fraud provisions under the Federal securities laws, including the accounting standards used for mergers and acquisitions. The Committee will also consider initiatives by the SEC and others to harmonize international accounting standards.

Organized Crime and Securities Markets. The Committee will examine issues relating to the integrity of the securities exchanges, including recent allegations of organized crime involvement in manipulating markets and defrauding individual investors.

Investment Company Act of 1940 and the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA). The Committee will examine regulatory inconsistencies between the Investment Company Act of 1940 and ERISA to determine what legislative or other changes are necessary to improve the effectiveness of each of those Acts for mutual fund investors. In conducting this review, the Committee will consult, as appropriate, with other Committees.

Securities Investor Protection Corporation. The Committee will review the operations of the Securities Investor Protection Corporation and proposals to improve its effectiveness.

Timely stock trade execution. The Committee will review industry practices with respect to t+3 stock execution to ensure stock executions are not delayed and to enhance the ability of market participants to move to t+1 execution.

INSURANCE

Workers Compensation Insurance. The Committee will examine the current state of workers compensation insurance to determine the reasonableness of the types of claims and charges being made, and to consider whether further efficiencies or anti-fraud mechanisms can be developed.

Insurance Marketing. The Committee will examine a number of consumer protection issues concerning the marketing of insurance products, potentially including the churning of life insurance, sales and marketing representations, coercion and pressure tactics, product bundling, excessive premium charges for credit insurance and mortgage insurance, and Internet marketing of insurance products.

Insurance Solvency Regulation. The Committee will examine the current accreditation program of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) that judges the adequacy of State insurance regulatory systems.

Insurance Fraud. The Committee will examine the efforts by the States, the NAIC, and other entities, to locate and fight insurance fraud, particularly in implementing reforms developed after the Martin Frankel scandal.

NARAB Implementation. The Committee will determine whether a sufficient number of States are implementing uniform or reciprocal insurance agency licensing rules as required under the National Association of Registered Agents and Brokers Title of GLB, and what further measures are necessary to promote uniformity in insurance licensing.

Preemption of State Insurance Law. The Committee will review any efforts by Federal agencies to preempt State laws governing insurance activities, and will also examine any controversial State insurance laws to ensure that they do not significantly interfere with Federally authorized powers of financial institutions.

Insurance Product Approval. The Committee will review the 50 State approval process for allowing new insurance products and forms to be admitted into the insurance markets.

National Insurance Uniformity. The Committee will review various alternatives for modernizing the regulation of insurance, including reform efforts by the NAIC, development of interstate and regional regulatory compacts, facilitation of nationwide State-run insurance regulation programs, proposals for an optional Federal insurance charter, and other reforms for improving the efficiency and effectiveness of insurance regulation.

Insurance Consumer Protections. The Committee will examine the regulatory systems established by the States to protect consumers' insurance interests, such as efforts to prevent discrimination against victims of domestic violence, to ensure adequacy of reimbursement of overpayments that are the result of racial or gender discrimination, and to ensure that consumer policy rights and recovery procedures are fully protected. The Committee will also examine how consumer inquiries are recorded as part of consumer claim records.

Seniors' Retirement Needs. The Committee will review the insurance needs particular to those contemplating or currently in retirement, including the use of annuities and other insurance pension programs, as well as nursing care insurance and other old age insurance programs.

Class Action Insurance Litigation. The Committee will review issues surrounding class action suits filed in the name of insurance policy holders, examining the reasonableness of fees and compensation awarded and determining to what degree the settlements serve the parties' interests. The Committee will also examine the effect of large awards on costs for consumers as well as the impact on State regulation of insurance. As appropriate, the Committee will consult with other Committees in reviewing these issues.

FEDERAL AGENCIES/AGENCY PROGRAM ISSUES

Government Sponsored Enterprises (GSEs). The Committee will continue its comprehensive review of the three housing GSEs—Fannie Mae, Freddie Mac, and the Federal Home Loan Banks. Areas to be covered include: (1) review of implementation by Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac of their October 2000 voluntary agreement to enhance market discipline and transparency; (2) the governmental structure and authorities for conducting safety and soundness and mission regulation; (3) new leverage and risk-based capital rules; and (4) compliance with HUD's recently announced increases in affordable housing goals.

Management/Reform of the Federal Reserve System. The Committee will conduct oversight of the operations of the Federal Reserve System, such as the System's role in providing financial services as well as its management structure and consolidation of operations, use of technology, control and oversight mechanisms, budget processes, pay and benefit levels, and systemwide strategic planning.

Corrections Recommended by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC), the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC), and Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS). The Committee will consider a number of technical and other corrective changes recommended by the FDIC, OCC, and OTS to the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (FDIA), the International Banking Act of 1978, the National Bank Act, the Home Owners' Loan Act (HOLA), and other banking laws relating to FDIC, OCC, and OTS authorities in the area of contracting, foreign banks, resolution of insured depository institutions, and other issues.

Management of the Nation's Money: Activities of the Bureau of the Mint and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing (BEP). The Committee will oversee the activities of these Treasury bureaus as they relate to the printing and production of U.S. currency and the financing and minting of circulating and commemorative coins. The Committee will review the efficiency and productivity of Mint and BEP manufacturing operations, as well as the Numismatic Public Enterprise Fund. Technical changes to the authorizing statute for the latter will also be considered.

Anti-Fraud Agency Coordination Efforts. The Committee will examine the efforts of the financial services regulators to coordinate their anti-fraud efforts, including disciplinary records and other consumer protection records.

Central Liquidity Facility. The Central Liquidity Facility (CLF), a government corporation managed by the NCUA, is a valuable source of loans for meeting the seasonal and emergency liquidity needs of credit unions. The CLF borrows from the Treasury Department's Federal Financing Bank, though Congress has imposed borrowing and lending caps. Last year, the General Accounting Office (GAO) audited CLF operations and raised some questions. Subsequently, the conference report accompanying the FY 2001 VA-HUD appropriations bill directed the NCUA to develop policies and procedures to clarify credit union access to the CLF. The Committee may conduct an oversight hearing or other activities relating to the CLF in preparation for advising the Appropriations Committee on CLF-related decisions.

Farm Credit Administration's National Charter Initiative. In consultation with other Committees, the Financial Services Committee will continue to monitor the GSE-related issues involved in the Farm Credit Administration's national charter initiative.

Reports of Inspectors General or Other Investigative Agencies. The Committee will review and, where appropriate, hold hearings on the findings of investigations and audits conducted by the GAO and the Inspectors General of the agencies that fall within the Committee's jurisdiction.

Government Performance and Results Act. The Committee will continue to review the strategic plans, annual performance plans, and annual performance reports of departments and agencies under its jurisdiction.

HOUSING ISSUES

Mortgage Finance Reform/Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act/Truth-in-Lending Act/Predatory Lending. The Committee may conduct hearings on comprehensive mortgage finance reform to address the evolution of mortgage finance for the 21st century and to assess what regulatory and statutory changes are necessary to curb predatory lending practices. As the financial services industry and mortgage markets adapt to technological changes, the Committee will review the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act and the Truth-in-Lending Act. In the area of predatory lending, the Committee will review regulatory initiatives and the application of laws, such as the Home Ownership and Equity Protection Act, in order to distinguish between subprime lending activity, which provides needed capital for many historically underserved consumers, and the abusive practices associated with predatory lending.

HUD Management Reform and Staffing. The Committee will conduct a comprehensive review of the management reform initiatives implemented in the past five years. Between 1994 and 2001, all programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) were designated by GAO as being at “high risk” for waste, fraud, and abuse. However, on January 17, 2001, GAO reported a reduction in the number of HUD programs deemed to be high-risk due to HUD’s improvement in Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) management controls. Yet GAO cited continuing, significant weaknesses in two of the department’s major programs—the single-family mortgage insurance and the rental housing assistance programs. The report also noted management challenges related to information and financial management data systems and staffing. The significant weaknesses cover approximately 70 percent of HUD’s programs and involve potential liabilities up to $454 billion in the single-family portfolio and excess subsidy rental payments up to $3.1 billion over the last four years.

HUD Related Reauthorizations. The Committee will review, for appropriate action, expired—and expiring—authorizations relating to HUD.

HUD Federal Housing Administration (FHA) Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund Capital Ratio Standards. The Committee will review the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund capital ratio standards to assess whether current ratio requirements are appropriate. In 1990, Congress enacted legislation requiring a capital ratio of 2 percent by 2000. The fund reached the 2 percent goal by 1995, aided by an economic expansion, and currently has a reserve fund in excess of $16 billion. In the 106th Congress, the Subcommittee on Housing and Community Opportunity asked GAO to review the adequacy of the capital ratio standards. GAO is scheduled to report to the Committee by late February and the Committee will evaluate the report at that time.

Private Mortgage Insurance (PMI). The Committee will review the effectiveness of laws requiring cancellation of private mortgage insurance once certain equity thresholds are achieved. The Committee will also review the ability of the Federal Housing Administration to grant similar consumer rights and will consider whether further consumer disclosures are appropriate.

Real Estate Activities. The Committee will review the benefits and concerns relating to the entrance of financial services firms and Internet firms into the real estate agency markets.

Minorities and Homeownership. The Committee will conduct hearings to review homeownership rates, particularly for underserved markets, e.g., minorities, inner-city neighborhoods, and women. The overall homeownership rate is approximately 68 percent; however, the average homeownership rate for African Americans is in the 40th percentile and Hispanics register as low as the 20th. The Committee will focus on homeownership disparity in order to fine-tune government policies, practices, and incentives that may preclude successful lending and ownership.

Flood Insurance. The Committee will review the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) and the implementation of reforms initiated by the Riegle Community Development and Regulatory Improvement Act of 1994 (Public Law 103-325). The Committee will also review the recently submitted Federal Emergency Management Agency reports addressing subsidy reductions and repetitive losses.

Catastrophic Insurance Protection. The Committee will review the current and projected future ability of the insurance industry to survive a catastrophic natural disaster, and will examine the solvency of various State disaster pools and other disaster solvency programs.

Rural Housing Prepayment. The Committee will review the rural multifamily rental program and specific housing laws prohibiting prepayment of the debt of government-financed mortgage loans.

CDBG/HOME Oversight. The Committee will review the CDBG program and the Home Investments Partnerships Act (HOME) to assess the impact of funds in low- and very-low income neighborhoods. Given GAO's assessment that these programs are not at high risk for waste, fraud, and abuse, the Committee will focus on management and operation of the programs, including the timely expenditure of CDBG funds. As of February 2000, according to GAO, 239 of the over 950 entitlement grantees had unexpended balances that were excessive and represented approximately $1.6 billion. These two programs will be reviewed in connection with consideration of their reauthorization.

Oversight of the Puerto Rico Public Housing Authority. The Committee will review measures taken by HUD to correct widespread abuse in contracting and program management uncovered at the Puerto Rico Public Housing Authority, the second-largest public housing authority in the country. In July 2000, HUD's Inspector General wrote to Congress and expressed serious concern with the adequacy of the measures HUD had taken to address the waste and loss of Federal funds by the Puerto Rico Public Housing Authority.

Oversight of HUD's Real Estate Assessment Center (REAC) and Public Housing Assessment System (PHAS). The Committee will review the functions of HUD's REAC and PHAS assessment programs. REAC and PHAS have been severely criticized for being unduly complex and unworkable from a management perspective. In 2000, the Department maintained that initial barriers to the implementation of REAC and PHAS were adequately addressed. However, the Committee continues to be concerned about complaints received from public housing authorities.

CURRENCY AND PAYMENT SYSTEM ISSUES

Electronic Commerce and Payment Systems. The Committee will continue to assess the domestic and international implications of new innovations in electronic money and electronic payment systems. Among the issues the Committee may examine are soundness, security, privacy, access to new electronic payment methods, eligibility criteria for issuing new payment methods, competing government regulation, and threats posed to critical infrastructures such as the payments system.

Counterfeiting. The Committee will continue its review of efforts to detect and combat the counterfeiting of U.S. currency in the United States and abroad.

Dollar Coin. The Committee will examine issues relating to the introduction in 2000 of the new one-dollar coin, including U.S. Mint production-allocation decisions, a true unit cost of production, management of the program throughout its life to date, the type and nature of fees paid for the design of the coin, and the Mint's expenditures on outside advertising and public relations firms for this and other initiatives.

INVESTIGATION OF LINKS BETWEEN INVESTMENT BANKING BUSINESS AND ISSUANCE OF SHARES IN INITIAL PUBLIC OFFERINGS

Following the July 8, 2002 WorldCom hearing, the Committee began the first Congressional investigation of Wall Street practices for the issuance of shares in initial public offerings to investment banking clients. Based on information developed in connection with that hearing, the Committee requested and subpoenaed thousands of pages of documents from Citigroup, Goldman Sachs, and Credit Suisse First Boston. The documents revealed that preferred investors involved in over 30 companies (including Enron, Global Crossing, and WorldCom) reaped profits from initial public offering shares and "spun" investment banking business back to the firms.

For instance, subpoenaed documents revealed that former WorldCom CEO Bernie Ebbers made $11 million in personal gains from initial public offering shares. Additionally, evidence indicates that ratings of stock analysts, such as Jack Grubman, were influenced by the prospect for investment banking business, despite previous denials by the analysts and firm management. Analysts' compensation appears to have been tied, in part, to the volume of such business. The SEC initiated investigations to determine whether securities laws were violated, and also initiated regulatory actions to prevent future direct linkages.
